Concept to Commercial Production

Providing Metal Tile production solutions is our core business. We believe in the power of innovative design to solve problems and maximize potential. Let us help you expand your roofing business with our precision engineered modular metal tile production equipment.

A manufacturing line is a long-term investment. We strive to understand your business from concept to commercialization. We believe metal tiles are a superior roofing product and design, safety and longevity do matter. Let us help you design tiles for your customers with a purpose built, cost effective production line that is made from quality engineered materials.

Metal Tile Designs

Let the Bradbury Metal Tile Roofing team assist you with choosing a tile design that meets your residential market requirements. Our turnkey solution includes the following design services:

- Our engineering design team can create a unique look from original substrates such as slate or wooden shakes.
- Let us help you create an aesthetically pleasing metal tile that will compete against asphalt shingles, cedar shakes, stone slate, and concrete tiles.
- We can design a range of different hidden fasten tiles, exposed fasten tiles and provide a stone-coating production solution for most tile designs.
